Directions to the Centre for Conservation

The Centre for Conservation is accessed from the First Floor of the British Library.

Take the main stairs and then the escalator to the first floor (not the Upper Ground Floor). At the top of the escalator turn right and walk alongside the King’s Library, then take your first left. Follow the corridor along through the first set of double doors directly ahead. Then go through the double doors on your immediate right into the stair lobby. Go through the glass doors onto the terrace, the Centre for Conservation is directly ahead of you.

If you require further directions, please ask at the Information Desk in Front Hall of the British Library.
