

A guide to applying to Cambridge University hardship funds

*Current student refers to anyone currently enrolled on a course. This includes PhD students who are currently working on corrections up to the point they have submitted the hard bound copy of their thesis.

Financial hardship is defined as finding yourself in exceptional and/or unexpected financial difficulty, which cannot be covered by personal resources available to you.

Applying to multiple funds for the same reason is not permissible. You must approach the Funds in the order outlined above. All funds require supporting statements and data is shared between funds.
